This was the first time the class was taught. I loved having the lectures then discussion. Could have been better organized when timing out how long the lectures would take before next discussion. Honestly, I think it could have helped if there was more background info on the history of the economics instead of lecturing all about it. It made lectures tiresome. Also, it would have been helpful to make homework readings on certain current events/topics that are happening around the world so that the students who are not politically up to date are not lost and then unable to participate in discussions.

Dr. Safner was very involved in the course, and gave energy in the class. Recommended to multiple peers to take this course as an elective.

Amazing lectures, I would make them obligatory. The entire subject matter of the class was very interesting and was perfect supplementary learning to my other class.

Amazing class. Combined history and economics perfectly. Kept my interest in every lecture, and the freedom to write what we want is great. Would definitely recommend.

Easily the best course I've taken at Hood

Easy going and informative class!

Professor Safner did a good job with this class and teaching a broad perspective of the political branch of economic thought. I feel that incorporating specific more modern examples of these concepts could make the class better.

Dr. Safner does a great job of teaching in a way that facilitates learning. Even with relatively dull material, he finds a way to engage students and present the material in a fun way. Discussions help to promote learning and are a good tool in allowing us to relate the relative topics to relative issues.
